Willy Watkins here. Pip pip, camperooos!

I was so bowled over by all the stories I heard this weekend from return campers who said Wildfire has had a tangible effect on them somehow over the years. Be it their confidence, their openness, or their mental health.

I think it speaks volumes to the power of saying "why not?", and of taking risks in a friendly, fostering environment.

I cannot tell you how special it is to see the looks of utter gleeful pride on the faces of each and every one of you who have spent all weekend proving to yourselves that you can!

Helen Louise

Yes for mental health. Wildfire is the cheapest yet most effective therapy I've ever done.

Yes! this absolutely! I come away able to talk to people again. I shed my London closed-offness for a couple of days and that open heart open mind feeling stays with me for ages after CW. And I do so many brave things over the weekend that I feel so much more capable returning to the real world. For me it's watching how incredibly supportive the community is that has the biggest impact though- humans can be brilliant!

Such true words Will Watt, I always come away feeling inspired and happy in my head space. Wildfire helps so much with my mental health and self esteem. Love you lot to the moon and back! Pip! Pip! Xxxx
